Abstract (250 words or less):

This year my science fair project is named "Do People Remember Better in Color?". I had four middle school students look at a picture in color. Then I had four middle school students look at a picture in black and white. The pictures were identical. I gave them exactly one minute to look at the picture. When they were done looking at the picture, I gave them each a sheet of ten questions. The questions were also identical. After they were done answering the questions, I averaged up the percentages. The percent average of the people looking in color was 93%. The percent average of the people looking in color was 90%. The purpose of my project was to determine whether people remember better in color or not. My hypothesis stated that people would remember better in color. After completing my project, I came to the conclusion that people do remember better in color, and that proves that my project supports my hypothesis.

I hereby certify that the above statements are correct and the information provided in the Abstract is the result of one year's research. I also attest that the above properly reflects my own work.
